This quagmire has been known to all the occupants of the farm from its earliest settlement, but never till now has any conception been formed of its depth. The main diameter of the pit proper, for some afteen feet down, is about three and a halt feet.

COLORADO BREEZES.

OREGON, MISSOURI, FRIDAY, JULY 23, 1875.

There is a world of human nature tense, and better judges of human nature do not travel the road. Their ideas are original, and there is a quaintness about their humor that is refreshing. It is a privilege to ride on the box and talk with them. In the drive of 144 miles from Canon City to Del Norte there were three drivers. who relieved each other every nine or ten hours. From them I ascertained that the stage horses on that route numbered about 150; that they were all grey, and I could see for myself that they were all matched and superior anals. Each team travels from eight to fifteen miles a day-a remarkably easy trip it seemed to me, but the driv said they could not stand more than that, the way they had to be driven, and the speed they were required to make. I made a remark to George, one of the drivers, that the country seemed rather barren; that the land was not very good, and that I couldn't see what it was good for. "You are right, my infant," said he, "it is a rather bad community. It is only fit to draw a salary in. For my own part I have all I want to do to draw my breath, and a cork once in a while."

"There doesn't appear to be much fruit in the country," I suggested.
"Fruit!" he answered with a grunt the country is bare of fruit. I guess you have never seen the storms in these diggins, have you? In the first place, fruit trees won't grow here, and f they could grow they wouldn't blossom; but even if they could blossom and bear fruit, every apple would have to be tied on the tree with a hemp tring, to prevent the wind from blow ing it off. They hung a man up here," continued George, "the other day, but I assure you, sir, the wind plowed so hard and the dust was so thick, that they hung the wrong man, a church member at that, and they never discovered the mistake until the wind blew him down, and he accused his friends of playing a practical joke The wind storms in portions of Colo ado are described as something awful. No doubt the driver, in his reference to fruit, remembered some of his own experiences in wind-storms. At Mosca Pass, on the the stage road, about two-third of the way between Canor City and Del Norte, there is a high hill or bank of sand. Two years ago a large herd of sheep, numbering several thousands, was grazing in the vicinity attended by the Mexican boys as herd-ers, and any number of dogs. Suddeny a storm arose. Black clouds coursed through the valley, sweeping away acres of trees and stones and sand. It was a whirlwind; a typhoon run mad. It twirled for a moment about the sandhill, then took it up in its strong arms and scattered it in thick sheets over the plain. Under it were buried 600 sheep and the two Mexican boys,

How many dogs perished with the 600 my informant failed to say. MINNESOTA. How Grasshoppers were Kill-If anybody has doubted the efficacy the bounty system for the destruction of grasshoppers, that doubt will be dissipated by the specials to the Pioneer-

Press this morning from the infested istrict. Under the stimulus of boun ties, ranging from $1 to $4 per bushel, the farmers and the unemployed men and boys in the towns and villages have turned out in large numbers and are rapidly exterminating the grasshop-pers in Blue Earth, Nicollet, Le Sueur and Brown counties. Our Mankato correspondent estimates that by last night 2,000 bushels of hoppers were re-ceived in the six infested towns in Blue Earth county-and the insects are now growing so scarce that some of the oys are retiring from the business. At St. Peter on Saturday and Monday 250 bushels were caught and destroyed. about 300 bushels of those trophies of the combat have been received by the authorities. As the result of a few days' work, over 2,500 bushels of these destructive pests have been delivered over to the authorities and the flames. At Mr. Green's estimate 300,000 per bushel, here is an aggregate of 750,000,000 locusts destroyed by this means alone, to say nothing of the multitudes destroyed by others means. Here were enough, if they had lived, to eat up the State of Minnesota. Brown county, too, has gone into the business with an offer of $2 per bushel In Meeker county the hoppers seem to be very scarce, only six and one-fourth ushels having been delivered under an nducement of $5 per bushel. But the work is now progressing finely all along the line, and if Sibley and McLeod counties will close up the gap and send their battallous of lufantry into the field the grasshoppers will be pretty well stamped out before the week is over.—

World. In the village of Sperenberg, about twenty-nine miles distant from Berlin, Pruscia, is situated the deepest well in the world. It is for some distance sixteen feet in diameter, and is 4,194 feet in depth. It was begun about five years ago by the government authorities, with a view of ascertaining the ex-istence of rock salt beneath the strata of gypsum occurring in the locality. At the depth of 380 feet the salt was reached, but the boring was continued to a depth of 980 feet, the diameter of the bore being reduced to about thirteen inches. The boring was subsequently prosecuted by steam until the final lepth of 4,194 feet was natained. At he lowest point the salt deposits still continue, exhibiting the enormous thickness of 2,907 feet.

The professors were delighted with them. Professor Cox pronounced them far ahead of envising of the kind in the state. Here anything of the kind in the state. Here is the description of two of them: No. 1 is a perfect circle nine hundred and thirty feet in circumference; the banks are very perfect, with an even slope, and are twenty feet high above the bottom of the ditch inside, and from eight to nine feet above the commo surface outside. The gateway is on a level with the inside of the mound, and opens almost directly south. At the hirty teet wide, and between ditches sixteen feet at the top and fiftyeight feet at base. The level inside of the ditch is one hundred and ten feet in diameter, with a mound exactly in the centre, which is four feet high and fifty feet wide at the base. Oak and walnut trees of the largest size are growing promiscuously on the banks of No. 1, and in one part of the ditch the water stands during the entire year. No. 9 is a rectangle, with corners rounded and sides curved toward the centre. This mound is one hundred and nine feet long from entrance to the ditch inside; seventy-five feet in the widest part and seventy-one feet at the points where the sides curve toward the centre inside the banks of the ditch; outside banks are ten feet high above bottom of ditch; gateway nine feet wide at top and thirty-three feet at base between ditches. The entrance to this mound is a little cast of north. On either side of the entrance, but connected with the large mound, is a similar mound, fifty-seven inches in diameter at base and four feet high. These two smaller mounds are twenty-

A VERY BIG BONANZA.

St. PAUL, Minn., July 10 .- For some time past, rumors have been in circulalation that an iron mountain, rivaling the celebrated mountain of that name in Missouri, had been discovered some 60 miles north of Duluth. To test the truth or falsity of these reports, two weeks ago, a party of explorers left for the designated locality. The party re-turned on Thursday, and bring back most enthusiastic accounts of what they saw. The mountain is described as eight miles long, one and a half wide, and having an altitude of 1,200 feet above the level of Lake Superior; and the explorers express their belief that there is not such another body of pure iron in the known world. On the strength of this report, Mr. Anson Northrup, of Duluth, and a party of geologists from Philadelphia left yesterday for the mountain. for the purpose of making a thor ough scientific examation.
